

HANDLING SERVICE REQUESTS

ABSTRACT

A first component that stores information about requests for information directed to an interface (e.g., a bus of a computer system connected to components), receives an indication of a request sent by a second component to the interface. The first component sends an identifier for a subsequent request to the second component.

10

20778192.doc